Subject: Microsoft anti trust agreement

I would like to voice my disappointment with the anti-trust remedy being discussed by the DOJ. I feel this remedy falls well short of having any significant impact on Microsoft's predatory business practices.

I believe the only solution is one often discussed in public forums. That is separating Microsoft into two separate companies with one developing system software and nothing else. Any remedy short of bisecting the company is simply window dressing. The US tax payer will be paying for another anti-trust law suit within a short period of time.
